Political Financiers. "RESOLVED, That the great moral of the report of the late Investigating Committee into the Treasury Defalcation, is the complete vindication of the Democratic policy of the total separation of the public funds from the control of banking institutions."—[Resolutions of the Democratic meeting of Saturday evening.

This is all very well, so far as it goes; but a diligent reading of the report in question will lead to the opinion that it does not, by any means, go far enough. If that document proves any thing, it proves that the only safe course in regard to the public funds is their total separation from the control of party politicians. Something considerable of the missing moneys of the State were lost by the way of banks; but a great deal more was lost through ways and means, of which none but the party associates of Mr. Breslin knew any thing about; and they refuse to disclose. It is poor in our Democratic fellow-citizens thus to leap upon the banks, and tear them to pieces, when, perhaps, they have in their very midst the men who have helped to put out of the way more of the unfound cash than all the banks in the State. Is this hue and cry raised to turn away attention from some shivering delinquents who have scarcely a fig-leaf between them and exposure? We hope not.

The truth is, the defaleation of Mr. Breslin was needed, not for the sake of the banks, but for the sake of the public morals. It was one of those catastrophes which, while they are the necessary and inevitable consequence of existing practices, are intended by Providence to call the attention of men to a wrong tendency, by startling them with an exhibition of its effects. But for such catastrophes, an evil practice once inaugurated would never cease but with the disruption of the institutions upon which it depends. BRESLIN was the type and symbol of an universal propensity among men in political life to speculate upon the public funds. Show us the man of that day, who, having the power, did not do it. That which Buss and Breslin did, was spoken of in financial circles, and knots of party men, as fit to be done, and praiseworthy. The politician sunk to the level of the gambler, the gambler rose to the level of the politician. Prosperous all to no purpose, except for the present motimes, a redundant Treasury, a huge taxation, no established code of ethics upon the subject, unworthy men in high places. and what so natural as that every unwashed hand should grasp at the exchequer? State Treasurers, and County Treasurers, and City Treasurers, were recognized as thriving gentlemen-men safely fixed upon the summit of that tide that leads to fortune. How? Through the profits which they were expected to realize out of the public moneys under their control-in the eyes of operators on 'Change, on Third street, and on Baker street, a perfectly legitimate source of tion will do a thousand-fold more for the our revenue. Political parties took hold of of Throat and Lung diseases, than all the prepthe matter; bankers became party agitators; and the question, who shall be the candidate for a profitable Treasurership, was decided by the result of an inquiry, in what "institution" he would deposit his official funds in case he should be elected. Is there any wonder that there were BRESLINS in those days? When the moral bottom has fallen out of the community, what will the first weak man do but fall through? In such times, it needs no banks to aid the process—the instru- Machine, which modestly but justly sustains selves. Bankers are but men, and it is men that do the mischief, with or without corporate power, as the case may be. It is written, "Put a beggar upon horseback, and he will ride to the devil." The author of this proverb must have had an intimate knowledge of the career of needy politicians. A man who can not manage his own money, is unfit to be trusted with the moneys of the public. He who is incapable to accumulate for himself, has so right to be considered a fit financial agent for the community. Our public affairs perpetually, and in all their departments, exhibit the phenomena of beggars on horseback. Look at our City Council-a body of magnificent gentlemen, who regard it as their principal business to lay out money in fifties and hundreds of thousands. Did they learn finance in extensive, prosperous and wellregulated establishments of their own? Mighty few of them. Mounted, booted, spurred, and with public bankruptcy full in view, they are in their glory. Who so expansive as they? Entirely above serious business-which, perhaps, is fortunate, as they have in general no capacity for it-the only occupation of which they seem to be capable is spending the money and taking the honors. We commend to our fellow-citizens the personal inspection of one single meeting of our municipal tion of the proverb to which we have to give Mr. Braman a call.

alluded. But go where you will-to Washington, Columbus, Indianapolis, Springfield, Lexington, Harrisburg-and what do you find? That the mendicant and his steed are ubiquitous. Mean men in high places, forgetful of the rock from whence they were hewn, and the hole in the pit from which they were digged, incapable to understand that they are mere implements, assume to be the rightful possessors of irresponsible power, and in their vagrant and capricious discretion originating measures and doing acts more injurious to the common good than any thing that could be affected by an hundred thousand foreign enemies.

Fatal Railroad Accident in Canada. Another accident on the Great Western Rail-Another accident on the Great Western Rail-road of Canada, which stretches from the Sus-pension Bridge, at Niagara Falls, to Windsor, opposite Detroit, occurred on Friday night last. We are told that the heavy rains had washed away a portion of the embankment of the road between Flamboro' and Dundas, making a chasm of one hundred and fifty feet wide, and lifty feet deep, into which a whole wide, and fifty feet deep, into which a whole train, except the rear car, consisting of engine, baggage-car, and one second and two first-class cars, plunged, smashing them to atoms. Four cars, plunged, smasning them to atoms. Four persons were instantly killed, and several others have died of their injuries. Those killed were George Morgan, engineer, Hamilton, C. W.; Alex. Braid, Hamilton; Wm. Milne, breakman; Jones Boyer, a German, of Ohio; Hans Jacensen, Davenport, Iowa, instantly

The scene was a most norriote one—a terr-ble storm was raging at the time, and a torront of water was rushing through the chasm.

There was the utmost difficulty in rescuing the dead and succoring the wounded. The cars were completely wrecked, and the engine buried itself in the soil. The night express train passed over the spot in safety half an hour previously.

Besides the four whose names have reached us as killed, there are two others whose name are not reported, and also others wounded, whose names are not ascertained.

HOME INTERESTS. A Remarkable Cure of Asthma .-- The following is from one of our best citizens: CINCINNATI, March 11, 1859. For many years I had suffered from that most distressing of all diseases, spasmodic asthms, but improved, from time to time, until last September, when inhalation of the fumes of a match brought on a most fearful paroxyam-and from that time to the hour I placed myself under the treatment of Dr. J. Winslow Ayer, of the Throat and Lung Institute, 30 West Fourth street, the paroxysms increased in frequency and in violence. So painful and afflictive was the disease, that I made but four respirations in a minute during a paroxysm. For months I had not slept in bed, and the only rest I obtained was in a sitting posture. I was confined to my house most of the time, and such was the violence of the disease that my life was despaired of. I employed the most skillful physicians, and other eminent members of the profession were consulted; but ment. Nothing afforded permanent relief. Although almost despairing, I consulted Dr. Ayer about a month ago, and in less than two days I was able to walk out, and ever since that time I have continued to improve, day by day. I am now able to walk miles with little fatigue, and attend to business nearly as well as I ever did in my life. I have no difficulty of breathing. I can sleep in bed, have no wheezing, and my general health is excellent. Indeed, I am now so far recovered that I shall soon abandon all medicines, and apply myself to business, with hope and elasticity of spirits. The effect of Dr. Aver's medicines has utterly astonished me and my former physicians. I am satisfied that Dr. Ayer's Medicated Inhalaarations that have ever before been compounded.

BRAMAN & Co., corner of Fourth and Walnut streets, up stairs, an excellent, light-running Sewing mentalities to squander will make them- the dignity of its appellation-"The Boudoir Sewing Machine." This unique piece of mechanism was made by Mr. Daniel Harris, who concentrated all his mechanical intention and skill to produce a machine, which should not only be novel in many of its parts, but be specially remarkable for the easiness of its motion and its noiselessness of operation. The feed is an upper-surface, which receives its motion from the needle-bar-a pin on which impinges two inclined planes. The stitch is graduated with the utmost nicety and elegance, but during the time the machine is in motion the feed can not be changed. A gum-elastic ging passes into a groove on the pulley, and gives the machine a light and pleasant motion, by pressing against the driving-pulley below. We might describe the peculiarities of the other portions of this elegant and attractive dumb sewer; but in a notice of this kind it is unnecessary; for those who read, will most unquestionably call upon Mr. Braman, by whom they will be received in a manner which bespeaks the gentleman, and be instructed in the mysteries of this household -this Boudoir Machine-as none but a mechanician knows

Two or three facts, however, and we have lone. The arrangement of the box is such that, when closed, no injury can accrue to the works should children interfere, or play with the treadle below.

The treadle is also of poculiar adjustment, for its center of oscillation is placed above, instead of below the foot-thus giving to the foot a swinging motion, while it transfers a portion of the labor from the ankle to the knee. We advise all who feel an interest in these legislature, as the best possible illustra- highly useful inventions of these latter times,
